RIFLES

We have reorganized the vast Uberti USA catalog for even easier reference. The product listed on pages 2 through 5 is higher demand, aggressive pricing, and higher availability—while still representing a good variety between cartridge revolvers and rifles.

This is our core product commitment to dealers nationwide: this select lineup of Uberti USA revolvers and rifles has been rounded up for you in a quick-order reference section.

In the subsequent pages of the catalog, the core products have been again listed as part of their respective families; they are identified by this logo and a ► in front of each applicable item number.

Only Uberti USA firearms (imported by Stoeger Industries) are protected with a 5-year warranty and serviced by factory-trained gunsmiths using genuine Uberti parts right here in the U.S.A. No other importers of Uberti products offer this extended warranty.

History. Uberti is today's oldest-operating manufacturer of Old West firearms. Founded in 1959 in Gardone, Italy, it has consistently offered modern enthusiasts the opportunity to own and shoot premium-quality replicas of historical firearms. On this side of the ocean, Uberti firearms have become a cherished part of Americana by appearing at the sides of heroes and villains in some of the most-loved Western movie classics. A passion for American history, and the power to invest in the best materials and machinery, has made Uberti replicas exact to the smallest detail and better than the originals in function and durability.

Take to the field. Competitive cowboy action shooters, working ranchers and discriminating collectors alike know Uberti is the standard against which all other replicas are judged. Our 1873 lever-action is by far the preferred competition rifle for Cowboy Action Shooting, and our 1873 Cattleman is both today's best-selling 1873 revolver and the most accurate replica of its iconic predecessor. Whatever the use, a Uberti gun will answer today's needs equally or better than the firearms we replicate did 150 years ago. But this should be no surprise: Uberti has been endorsing and sponsoring the American Western lifestyle for more than half a century, and it is with this enthusiasm and respect that we carry that tradition forward.

SPECIFICATIONS: Cylinder: 6-shot, engraved or fluted Number of grooves: 7 Twist: Left BBL: Round Total Length: 13.8" Weight: 2.6 lbs. Finish: Blue Grip: 1-pc Walnut

The Walker's large-capacity cylinder allows it to hold up to 60 grains of black powder and offers easy access to the percussion caps.

The Dragoons were the first Colt revolvers to feature a latch at the muzzle for the loading lever. This prevented the loading lever from falling during firing.

The Walker and all Dragoon models have integrated loading cut-outs for easy and secure seating of the percussion caps.

The Walker was one of the first revolvers fitted with a loading lever. Colt later added a loading lever latch near the muzzle.

Modern machinery and improved materials result in a stronger and more precise metal-to-metal fit on Uberty's replica firearms.

Outlaws & Lawmen Series

Limited Availability Collector's Revolvers

The romance of the Old West cannot be separated from the individuals who lived and died to become true historical legends. Valiant sheriffs and marshals, and the notorious outlaws they chased; proud Indian warriors, and the U.S. Cavalrymen who pursued them; dapper card-sharks, and the dust-covered cowboys they swindled—the Old West abounds with such celebrated figures.

To pay homage to the famous men and women of the Old West, Uberti offers the limited-edition Outlaws and Lawmen series. Each piece in this collection draws its inspiration from the actual gun carried by the historical figure after which it is named. Only a limited number of these highly collectable guns will be available each year, making them rare and unique in their own right.

Outlaws & Lawmen "Patton"

PATTON — 4¾"
ITEM # 356729 Laser-engraved, nickel finish,
simulated-ivory grip

It is widely known that the flamboyant WWII general George Patton carried a single-action revolver while rushing towards Germany in the closing months of the war. Uberti has recreated this revolver—complete with simulated ivory grips and custom "Patton" engraving. We have chosen the all-American .45 ACP cartridge for this exciting recreation, which Old Blood and Guts himself would have approved of.

PATTON — 1873 SINGLE-ACTION CATTLEMAN NEW MODEL

ITEM NUMBER	MODEL	CALIBER	BARREL LENGTH	MATERIALS	MSRP
356729	Patton	.45 ACP	4.75"	Full Nickel-Plated Steel	$1549

Outlaws & Lawmen "Butch"

BUTCH — 4¾"
ITEM # 356730 Old West Finish, Bison Horn

One of the most romanticized outlaws of the Old West's waning days was Robert LeRoy Parker, better known as Butch Cassidy. Together with his partner in crime, the Sundance Kid, he was part of the Wild Bunch gang, with which he robbed trains and banks with law enforcement and the Pinkerton Agency always at his heels. Uberti has recreated an exact replica of his personal revolver, which was recently sold at auction with an opening bid of $175,000.

Outlaws & Lawmen "Hardin"

HARDIN — 7"
ITEM # 356720 Blued steel, case-hardened, simulated Buffalo-horn grip

If one man alone could typify the gunslinging outlaw, this man would have to be John Wesley Hardin. His career as a skilled gunfighter started in his teens and spanned the entire period between the 1860s and his death in the mid-1890s; so skilled in fact that he once even bested Bill Hickock, thus earning his enduring respect. This revolver follows the lines of his S&W top-break with which he prevailed in a shootout against Deputy Webb in Comanche, TX in the 1870s.

HARDIN — 1875 NO. 3, 2ND MODEL TOP-BREAK

Outlaws & Lawmen "Teddy"

TEDDY — 5½"
ITEM # 356719 Laser-engraved, nickel finish,
simulated-ivory grip

Rancher, police commissioner, hunter, conservationist, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, cavalry colonel and, of course, the 26th President of the United States: the Uberti USA Outlaws & Lawmen line could not be complete without a tribute to Theodore "Teddy" Roosevelt. Faithfully replicating the engraving on his beloved ivory-handled Colt, this revolver honors a larger-than-life figure to whom we all owe the enduring natural beauty of our nation.

The Outlaws & Lawmen Teddy comes with a full laser engraving closely replicating the looks of Roosevelt's Colt. In spite of its striking beauty, this revolver is extremely durable and made to be used—just like Teddy's original.

TEDDY — 1873 SINGLE-ACTION CATTLEMAN NEW MODEL

OUTLAWS & LAWYERS

Outlaws & Lawmen "Wild Bill"

WILD BILL — 7½"
ITEM # 356717 Blued steel, case-hardened, simulated-ivory grip

Hands down, James Butler "Wild Bill" Hickok is the prototype Old West gunfighter. He displayed his deadly shooting skills with a pair of muzzle-loading, ivory-gripped revolvers. This exact replica from Uberti USA is more practically chambered for the easily available .38 S&W cartridge, while still offering all the romance and flavor of Wild Bill's legendary sidearms.

WILD BILL — 1851 NAVY CONVERSION

Outlaws & Lawmen 1875 "Frank"

1875 FRANK — 7½"
ITEM # 356713 Nickel finish, simulated-ivory grip

This is a near-exact replica of the 1875 Remington carried by famous outlaw Frank James, brother to Jesse James. The original, which was surrendered to Governor Crittenden in 1882, now resides in the Autry museum in California.

FRANK — 1875 SINGLE-ACTION ARMY OUTLAW

Outlaws & Lawmen "Dalton"

DALTON — 5½"
ITEM # 356718 Hand-chased engraving, blued steel, case-hardened, simulated-pearl grip

This beautifully engraved revolver was owned by Bob Dalton from the notorious Dalton gang. The gang's long list of sprees came to an end in Coffeyville, KS, in 1892 in the course of an attempted bank robbery. A group of armed townspeople was able to engage the gang in a shootout and kill a number of its members including Bob. Today, Uberti recreates in the most minute details the revolver that was special-ordered by this feared gunman—talk about a piece of Old West history!

Outlaws & Lawmen "Jesse"

JESSE — 5½"
ITEM # 356715 All-black finish, simulated buffalo-horn grip

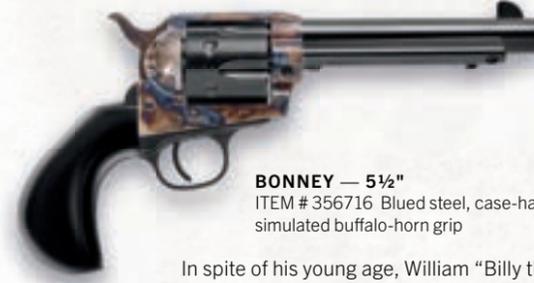

"Jesse was a man, and a friend to the poor. He'd never rob a mother or a child." The legend of Jesse James as the Robin Hood of the Old West endures to this day, to the point that ballads have been written in his memory. As a fierce outlaw, he owned a whole panoply of revolvers, so picking one as "his gun" would be all but impossible. We have opted for his 1873 Colt, which we have complemented with a stern all-black finish and grips—the ultimate Western antihero's revolver!

Outlaws & Lawmen "Bonney"

BONNEY — 5½"
ITEM # 356716 Blued steel, case-hardened, simulated buffalo-horn grip

In spite of his young age, William "Billy the Kid" Bonney was one of the most notorious gunfighters in the Wild West. His life ended in 1881 at the receiving end of Sheriff Pat Garrett's .44. Uberti USA recreates the lines of one of the revolvers he used, making it possible for modern shooters to relive the thrill of those long-gone New Mexico days.

Outlaws & Lawmen "Doc"

DOC — 4¾"
ITEM # 356714 Nickel finish, simulated-pearl grip

You're a daisy if you do! Doc Holliday is one of the most beloved dandy-gamblers in American lore. He often doubled as a lawman on the side of his friend Wyatt Earp. This revolver follows the lines of Doc's Lightning revolver, but is available in the more reliable 1873 action and the powerful .45 Colt or .357 Magnum cartridges.

1873 Single-Action Cattleman

Single-Action Army Revolvers – Special Finish

1873 SINGLE-ACTION CATTLEMAN NEW MODEL (NM) VS. OLD MODEL (OM)

WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE?

The New Model (NM) Cattleman features a slightly higher fixed front sight and an oblong ejector-plunger grip, while the Old Model (OM) features a shorter front sight and a round ejector-plunger grip.

Uberty offers a variety of 1873 Cattleman single-action revolvers in .45 Colt, .357 Magnum, and .44 Magnum. Many finishes can be had in either the "Old Model" (OM) with a screw cylinder-pin retainer (above left) or the "New Model" (NM) with a spring-loaded cylinder-pin retainer (above right).

Colt Single-Action Army Revolver of 1873

By Dan Carlson

Arguably the most famous handgun in U.S. history, the Colt Single-Action Army (SAA) Model 1873 Revolver is an iconic weapon associated with the Wild West and the American cowboy. Hundreds of Western-themed movies and TV shows feature rugged men and brave women on both sides of the law toting the legendary "Colt 45." Though highly sought in civilian versions, the impetus for this iconic firearm's creation came from the U.S. military.

The U.S. government in 1872 held trials for a new military service revolver to replace Colt's 1860 Army cap-and-ball revolver. Colt's design was favored and served as the primary military service revolver from 1873 until 1892 when it was phased out in favor of the new double-action .38-caliber Colt with a swing-out cylinder. But even then some American military personnel continued to use the SAA Colt well into the 20th century. Famous U.S. Army General George S. Patton carried a custom-made SAA Colt with ivory grips.

As popular as the SAA revolver was with the military, it was perhaps even more so with American civilians blazing new trails across the West. Colt introduced a version chambered in .44-40 Winchester, the same round used in the legendary Winchester 1873 lever-action rifle. Having a side arm and rifle chambered in the same round was exactly what the marketplace wanted and sales of both the revolver and rifle soared to cement their place in history by being used in some of the West's most famous conflicts, including the gunfight at the O.K. Corral.

Known for its reliability, Colt's SAA 1873 model saw constant modifications involving barrel lengths, grip shape and material, finish and calibers. Dozens of versions and variations are known to exist, including more than 20 offered by Uberti alone in calibers ranging from .22 rimfire to .44 Magnum in addition to the renowned .45 Long Colt. And all of Uberti's faithful recreations are protected with a five-year warranty.

1873 Short-Rifle Hunter Rifle

By Dan Carlson

By popular request, Uberti is offering a modern spin on the classic 1873 short rifle. Chambered for the powerful .44 Magnum and the .45 Colt cartridges, the 1873 Short Rifle Hunter rifles feature an ultra-sturdy receiver ideal for use with today's powerful hunting loads. Naturally, both lead and jacketed bullets may be used for maximum performance on game.

The 20" octagonal barrel comes with a traditional adjustable buckhorn sight. However, the rifle is also supplied with a user-mounted Picatinny rail that may be used for hunters preferring an optical sight—be it a scope or a red-dot. Capacity for either cartridge is 10+1 to guarantee plenty of quick follow-up shots. The stock sports a pistol grip for a positive hold, as well as a soft rubber buttpad that will soak up recoil. And, for hunters wishing to pair their long-gun with a handgun, this rifle may be matched with a Hunter Revolver (see page 27) with the same finish, same rail and in the same hard-hitting calibers. In a pinch, both the rifle and the revolver may be also used as safe and reliable trail guns, as well as in tactical situations.

The proven 1873 action sports an attractive and durable black finish. Like all 1873 rifles, it also features a dust cover to protect it from dirt, grime and the elements.

For hunters preferring optical sights, the 1873 Hunter Rifle comes with a Picatinny rail included in the box. This can be easily mounted by tapping out the buckhorn sight and screwing it on the tapped octagonal part of the barrel (all hardware included).

 1894 Carbine
By Dan Carlson

The years 1894-1895 were pivotal for American gunmaking, ammo-manufacturing and hunting. A number of innovations appeared that would revolutionize the way Americans choose the rifle and the cartridge they consider ideal for the king of US big-game, the whitetail deer. For in 1894, Winchester released their John Browning-designed Model 1894 lever action rifle, originally chambered in two (now semi-obsolete) black-powder cartridges, the .32-40 and the .38-55. The year after, the Connecticut firm introduced America's first sporting cartridge designed for use with smokeless powder, the .30-30.

The combination between the Winchester '94 and the thirty-thirty was to take the hunting community by storm. It has been estimated that more whitetail deer has been harvested with it than with any other single rifle-cartridge combination in American history. And it should be no wonder. The strong, handy, light Winchester '94—especially in its 20" carbine configuration—is ideal for negotiating the confined spaces of dense woods, deer blinds and stands; while the .30-30 packs enough punch for American deer and even black bear at moderate ranges, while delivering surprisingly modest recoil.

Uberti is proud to offer this carbine in its original guise—i.e., as it appeared before it was radically reengineered in the course of the second half of the 20th century. The carbine sports a 20" barrel, underneath which a tubular magazine packs 7 rounds of the venerable .30-30 cartridge. A traditional, fully adjustable buckhorn rear sight is complemented by drilling and tapping for a tang sight and, available later in 2025 at no extra cost, tapping for a Lyman 66A receiver sight. The action is 100% traditional with top ejecting, and a classic straight walnut stock, enhanced with checkering for extra purchase, completes this winning package.

The Uberti 1894 Receiver is true to the original, with blued finish, colorcase lever and top-ejection. Available later in 2025, the left side of the receiver is also drilled and tapped for the Lyman 66A receiver peep sight.

The 1894 Carbine features a traditional concave steel buttplate, complementing the straight walnut stock with fine checkering for better purchase.

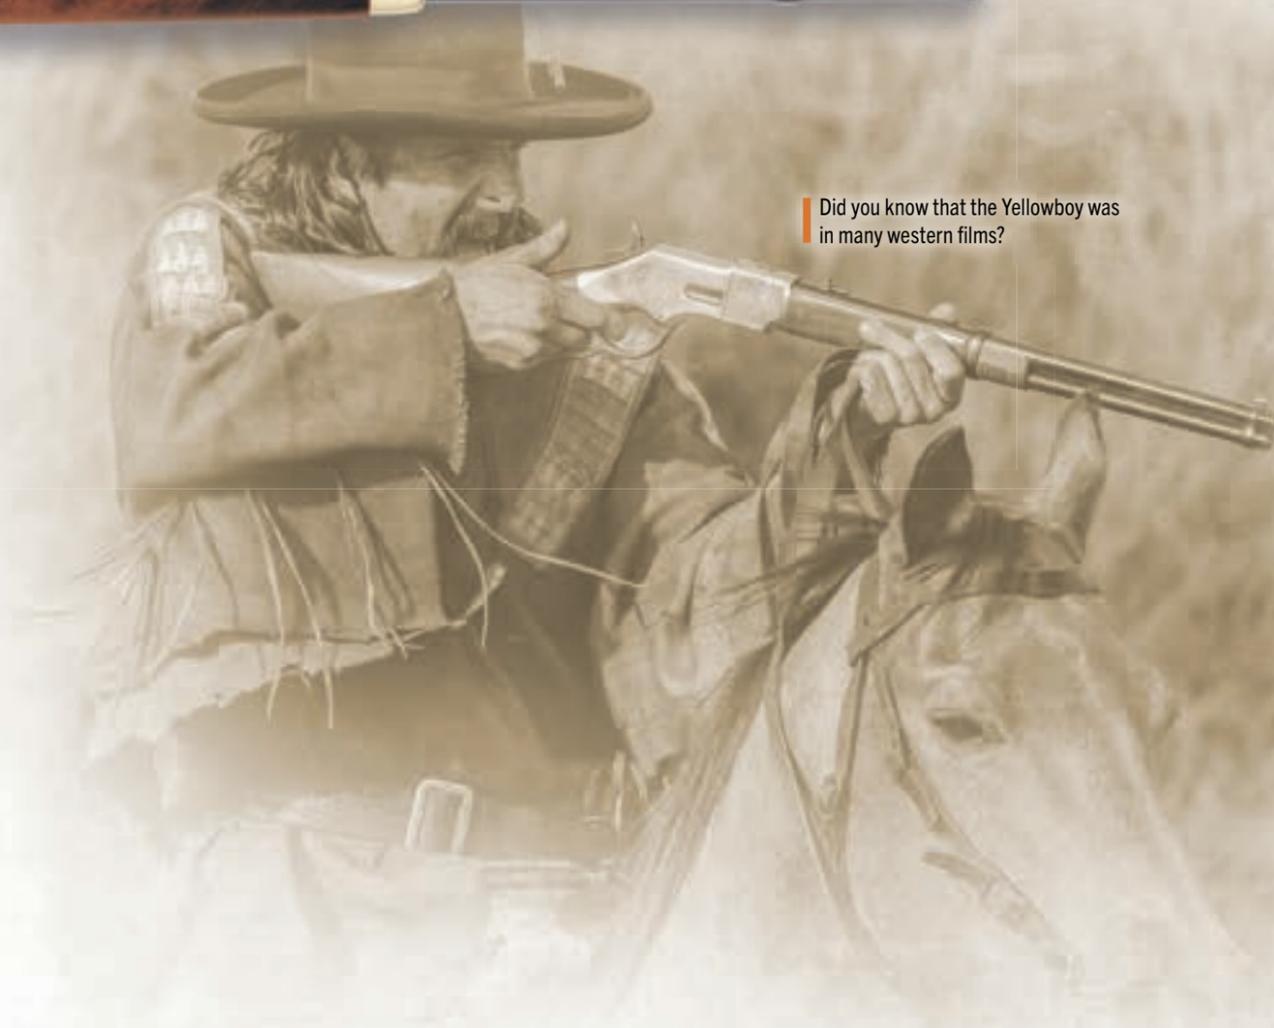

1866 Yellowboy

1866 "YELLOWBOY" SHORT RIFLE — 20"
ITEM # 342340 Brass, A-Grade Walnut, octagonal barrel

1866 "YELLOWBOY" RIFLE — 24¼"
ITEM # 342290 Brass, A-Grade Walnut, octagonal barrel

Did you know that the Yellowboy was in many western films?

Given the historic breakthroughs achieved with earlier models, Winchester created further improvements to make it even more useful on both the range and the battlefield. In 1866, they introduced Nelson King's patented spring-steel loading gate, as well as a wood forend for added comfort. These changes led to the creation of the "Yellowboy," the earliest version of the quintessential cowboy rifle whose lines and basic functioning survive to this day.

Uberty's 1866 Yellowboy lever-action rifle features a side loading gate—one of the major improvements over the 1860 Henry.

Another improvement is the addition of a satin Walnut forend, which is embellished with a brass forend cap.

1866 Yellowboy Deluxe Rifle

Timeless Classically-inspired Engraving

1866 ENGRAVED YELLOWBOY DELUXE – 20"
ITEM # 342341 A-Grade satin Walnut

One of the beauties of the timeless Model 1866 is the brass frame, hence its nickname "Yellowboy." It is not only the feature that makes this rifle instantly recognizable, but also a natural "canvas" on which a metal engraver can express his art at the highest level. With this in mind, Uberti has created this unique Model '66 Deluxe, which sports a polished brass frame embellished with a classically-inspired engraving design.

The rifle was originally chambered in the long-obsolete .44 rimfire. This cartridge, also called the .44 Henry, propelled a 200-gr lead bullet at a respectable 1,100 feet per second. To make it accessible to the modern shooter, however, Uberti chambers it instead for the popular .45 Colt; this centerfire round features similar ballistics as the older rimfire cartridge while being widely available and capable of shooting heavier slugs for better performance on game.

One last thing: however beautiful, these premium Uberti guns are not designed to be safe-queens! They do just as well at the range or in the field as they do on the coffee-table as you show them off to your friends.

Because the receiver of the 1866 is a "closed top" design—save for the ejector port—our engravers were able to use that space to further embellish this model with a floral design.

This beautiful short rifle features a classically inspired engraving faithfully copied from an original. The design shows a timeless acanthus-leaf motif on both sides. The left side of the receiver contains a medallion-shaped frame surrounding a bugling elk, while the right side has an escutcheon that may be left blank or engraved with the owner's initials. All the work has been performed by the famed At elier Giovanelli of Italy.

Like the 1860 Henry, the 1873 lever rifle also included a lever lock to ensure the lever remained securely in place.

Originally chambered for the then new .44/40 cartridge, the 1873 lever rifle featured a side loading gate for easy loading of its tubular magazine.

The 1873 Competition Rifle was created to provide competition shooters with a high level of performance in a lever-action rifle. This 1873 rifle, featuring an action job with a short-stroke lever, 20-inch barrel for maneuverability and accuracy, shotgun-style buttstock for quick shouldering and gold bead front sight for quick target acquisition, is ready to go right out of the box. The 1873 Competition Rifle carries an industry-leading 5-year warranty.

1873 Lever-action Rifle

By Dan Carlson

Arguably the most famous American-made rifle in history, the 1873 Winchester lever-action rifle was successfully marketed as "The Gun That Won the West." So popular was this firearm that it remained in production until 1923, years after newer lever-action designs were available. In all, more than 720,000 1873 rifles were produced over a period of 50 years.

Winchester initiated a special promotion for the rifle in 1875. Barrels were test-fired by Winchester and those producing the best groupings out of 1,000 barrels were fitted to rifles with set triggers and a special finish. These celebrated rifles were marked "One of One Thousand" and sold at a premium price that, adjusted for inflation, would translate to over $2,310 today. It's believed 136 of these rifles were made. The classic Western movie "Winchester '73" starring Jimmy Stewart is a story about one of these prized "One of a Thousand" rifles, and the 1873 Winchester has appeared in dozens of other movies and TV shows over the last 100 years.

A big reason for the popularity of the 1873 Winchester was its chambering in the .44-40 Winchester cartridge, which originally had a 200-grain bullet over 40 grains of black powder. Both Colt and Smith & Wesson started making revolvers in .44-40 and legends were born. Lawmen, outlaws, ranchers and settlers saw great value in having rifles and side arms able to shoot the same ammunition. With ballistic performance comparable to today's .44 Magnum, the 1873 Winchester in .44-40 proved to be a great hunting rifle for big game out to 150 yards and it's estimated only the Winchester .30-30 has taken more deer in the U.S. Ironically, the time-tested .45 Colt was never chambered in the originals, since the early version of the cartridge had too small of a rim for reliable extraction.

Uberty offers 12 versions of the iconic 1873 Winchester in different barrel lengths, finishes and chamberings that include today's readily available .357 Magnum and .45 Long Colt. Take advantage of your opportunity to own a treasured piece of American history.

150th Anniversary 1873 Rifle

Engraved Premium Lever-Action

ENGRAVED 1873 RIFLE – 20"
ITEM # 342812 A-Grade satin Walnut

The year 1873 was a turning point in the history of American firearms. It was then that Winchester introduced the Model 1873 as “The Gun That Won the West,” a lever-action that immediately revolutionized the way Americans viewed rifles. The 1873 was a strong, steel-framed centerfire rifle chambered in readily-available pistol-caliber cartridges capable of taking most American game save for the biggest and most dangerous.

Just as importantly, it came in various configurations including a handy 20” barreled version that could be easily carried both on foot and in a horse-scabbard. Uberti wants to pay tribute to this iconic rifle’s 150th anniversary by offering the handy 20” version embellished with an original 19th-century engraving. Thanks to its sturdy all-steel frame, this engraved rifle comes in both the hard-hitting .45 LC and the versatile .357 Magnum / .38 Special chamberings.

As we noted in the 1866 Deluxe page, please don’t be afraid to take these engraved rifles to the range or the field. That is what they were designed to do!

If there is such a thing as a quintessential Old West rifle, the Winchester 1873 gets the prize. The result of decades of improvement and experimentation, the 1873 was light and reliable as well as perfectly balanced and proportioned. In short: a rifle as good-looking as it was useful.

The Uberti USA 1873 Limited Edition Short Rifle Deluxe takes the basic model to new heights of beauty and functionality.

The rifle also features the instantly-recognizable "John Wayne" loop. Besides looking extraordinarily cool, this loop served the function of allowing gloved hands to operate the rifle smoothly.

The 1873 Short Rifle Deluxe is fully engraved after an original pattern from the 19th century, featuring game and scroll patterns. The engraving is hand-chased by the renowned Atelier Giovannelli, making each piece wholly unique.

1874 Sharps
The Original Buffalo Gun

“DOWN UNDER” SHARPS – 34”
ITEM # 71003 Case-hardened, A-Grade checkered Walnut, octagonal barrel

Uberti’s “Down Under” Sharps is a reproduction of the Sharps that Tom Selleck carried and with which he made some amazing long-distance shots in the film “Quigley Down Under”.

All models of Uberti’s 1874 Sharps rifles feature double set-triggers, allowing the front trigger to be set to a very light pull-weight—an aid to accurate shooting.

The top tang on the Sharps receiver is drilled and tapped to accommodate the mounting of a Creedmoor rear sight.

ITEM # 71230 Case-hardened, A-Grade checkered Walnut, octagonal barrel

1886 HUNTER LITE RIFLE — 22"
ITEM # 71231 Case-hardened, A-Grade checkered Walnut, round barrel

The receiver features a particularly attractive color-case finish, which contrasts nicely with the blued spring-steel loading port. Overall fit and finish on the 1886 puts these rifles squarely in the premium category—ready to turn heads at the range and the hunting camp.

Safe with black or smokeless powder, with pressures not exceeding 28,000 CUP/PSI.

The stock is made of select, A-grade American Walnut, precisely checkered for a truly striking appearance. The rifles also sport fully-adjustable sights and come drilled and tapped for a Lyman receiver peep-sight—just like the originals.

Uberty USA is proud to offer the model 1886—originally launched by Winchester to offer the hunting public a high-capacity lever-action rifle in a readily available, hard-hitting caliber. The strong action is capable of handling mid-grade .45/70 loads, making it ideal for tackling any game in North America.

Sights Creedmoor Rear Tang Sights and Globe Tunnel Front

The Creedmoor tang sights used on Sharps rifles were of three heights, depending on the yardage. The lowest, short-range sight was good to 300 yards, the mid-range to about 600 yards and long-range to 1,200 yards and beyond.

At very long range, with the rear sight elevated nearly to its limit, it was important to keep the rifle completely level to maintain accuracy. Consequently, front globe sights were often fitted with a spirit level so that the shooter could see that the bubble was centered and the gun was level before he touched the trigger.
